

WORKING TOGETHER... ...INVESTING IN SKILLS

The Bournemouth and Poole College is proud to be working in partnership with local business and industry to boost the skills of the regional workforce and position companies to ride out the economic storm.

Norco GRP Ltd.

Norco GRP Ltd. is a family run business with a diverse workforce, manufacturing fibreglass products to an international market. The College has provided training ranging from Skills for Life language support for Polish workers, through to specialist manufacturing and engineering qualifications.

Mark Northey, Managing Director says,

“Since teaming up with The College the process has been seamless and straightforward and our staff have come on leaps and bounds. We’ve had great support plus flexibility. The College team have worked around our working hours. For us production is crucial and we can’t afford to take people out of working time.”

SWL Security (Storewatch)

The College has been working in partnership with SWL Security for approximately 3 years. Getting to know the client is how we are successful, and have provided training services in Business Administration, IT and Management.

Mark Ferns, Managing Director says,

“The College team always listen to our needs and find us the best solution for our business. The IT training is possibly the best training we have ever had and showed an immediate business impact.”

Hospital Metalcraft Ltd.

Hospital Metalcraft Ltd. is a specialist company producing furniture and equipment for the medical world. The company is a new client to The College's Business Enterprise team, but in a short period of time we have helped them assess their skills requirements and supplied a breadth of training.

Stuart Davis, Managing Director says,

“We wanted to develop the team, giving them the skills they need to be effective at their job, progress and move the company forward. We have been impressed and plan to do further training with The College.”
