

The Course

In brief...

This is a short and very relevant qualification suitable for practising or potential Team Leaders to provide a strong foundation for their formal development in this role. The programme will help candidates use feedback and reflective practice to identify their leadership strengths and weaknesses, developing a plan of action for development in the workplace. They will also look at the impact of different leadership styles and how and when these should be used. Motivational theory will be introduced and the candidates will discover how to use this practically to ensure team and organisational goals are met.

Candidates are eligible for studying membership of the ILM for 6 months. Visit <http://www.i-l-m.com> to find out more about the Institute of Leadership and Management.
